

The calculation of Expected Credit Losses (ECL) is different for different product groups. The most common approach is the probability-weighted approach which is covered by the component "PwECL".

Different components are available for financial guarantees, trade receivables and current accounts. Please contact us for further details.

All components can be used for simulation purposes as well as the calculation of the Expected Credit Losses.